You are an intrepid researcher, unearthing words man was not meant to spell. As you seek out these baleful words, the evil Hounds of Tindalos lurk in every corner. You have five totems to Cthulhu to protect you from lunacy, so hold on to them tightly. Find words as long as you dare, careful not to lose your tender grip on your sanity...

Object of the Game:
Be the first to reach at least 100 points worth of words without going insane.

Set Up:
Shuffle the Letter Cards. Deal seven cards to each player. The rest of the deck is placed face down at the center of the table as a draw pile. Give each player five Cthulhu Pawns.

Each player rolls the die. The player with the highest roll goes first, and the play proceeds clockwise around the table. Place used cards into a discard pile face up next to the draw pile. If the draw pile is ever empty, shuffle the discard pile to form a new one.

Game Play:
Each player takes the following four steps on their turn, in order:

1. Form a word by displaying cards from their hand face up on the table (alternatively, a player may instead discard all of their cards without scoring, draw back to seven, and end their turn).

2. Score the word by adding the numbers on the cards. Each card’s value is determined by the number of angles that the letter contains (so a “C” is worth 0 points, and an “A” is worth 5). Add the score to the players current total and write down the word. That word may not be used by any player again this game.

3. Roll a Sanity Check. In a Sanity Check, the player must roll equal to or higher than the value of their word on the 20-sided Die, or they will losse one Cthulhu Pawn. A roll of 20 is always a success, no matter what the value of the word is. Regardless of the outcome of the Sanity Check, the player still scores for the word (unless it would bring them to 100 or more points - see “Winning the Game”). If a player loses their last Cthulhu Pawn, they are out of the game.

4. Draw Back up to seven cards. If the draw pile is empty, shuffle the discard pile to form a new one. Play continues to the left.
Forming Words:
A player may form any common English word of three or more letters. The plural version of a word counts as separate from the singular. Players may not form proper nouns (Dave, London), abbreviations (blvd.), acronyms (NASA), or contractions (she’s, don’t). No Word may be used more than once by any player in the game.

Winning the Game:
If a player forms a word that would bring them to 100 or more points, they must succeed at their Sanity Check in order to score. If the Sanity Check fails, they score 0 points. If it succeeds, they win the game.

A player may also win the game if they are the only player left with any Cthulhu Pawns.

Optional Rules:

1. The Unspellable Oath - A player with only one Cthulhu Pawn left may be allowed to make any word out of any number of letters and score for it (still rolling a Sanity Check to keep their last Cthulhu Pawn), whether or not it is gibberish. Unhinged folk can believe anything is a word.

2. Spell Binding - When a player discards their entire hand instead of making a word, other players may examine the discarded letters for words. Any other player may force the discarer to form a legitimate word from those letters, rolling and scoring as normal. If several players point out words that can be created, the discarding player must form the highest-scoring word out of those letters. After that, the player draws a new hand.

3. Psychotherapy - When a player discards their entire hand, they may roll against the total value of the hand. If the player rolls higher than that value, they regain a Cthulhu Pawn. If not, nothing happens. No one may have more than 5 Cthulhu Pawns during the game.

4. Last Words - Once a player reaches 100 or more points, each other player gets one more turn in which they have the opportunity to beat that player’s score. The player with the highest score wins the game. If two (or more) players tie for the highest score, the one who reached their final score first wins the game. In other words, it is not enough to simply tie for the high score - a player must beat it in order to win.
